

THE CHINOOK ADVANCE

Vol. 19

Chinook, Alberta, Thursday, September 20, 1934

No. 23

Men's Pull-over & Wool Mitts	$1.00
Men's Heavy Shirts	$1.45 & $1.95
Sweaters, Windbreakers and Iron Man Pants
ions	7 lbs .25c
acIntosh Apples	52 lbs $1.80
rapes, Green Tomatoes. Ripe Tomatoes,
Bananas, etc.
Popping Corn	.10c per lb

Acadia Produce Company

Macintosh Apples, Fancy	Sweet Mixed Pickles,
5 lbs .25c	per jar .30c
Ripe Tomatoes per box .28:	Pork Spareribs 1b .12c
Peas, No. 5 per tin .14c	Pork Chops 2 lbs .35c

We have a supply of fresh Bacon, Bologna and Cottage Roll. Let us fill your harvest needs.

CHINOOK MEAT MARKET

: Local Newslets :

Mr D. E. Bell B A, return ed on Monday from a two weeks business trip.

Mrs. Ole Rudy and Mrs. A. Bjornsrud are Calgary visitors this week.

Mr. H. C. McCrea, Editor of the "Hanna Herald" was a caller at the Advance office on Thursday.

Mr. Thos. Earl, of Winnipeg, who has been visiting during the summer months with his aunt and uncle, Miss Warren and Mr. S. W. Warren, returned to his home last week.

The Ladie's Card Club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. C. Pfeiffer. Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Robinson shared the honors. This was the last meeting of the schedule. Mrs. Petersen will be hostess of the Club next week.

The transportation charges on relief shipmen's cars are being reduced by 50 per cent to be distributed between the Dominion and provincial government.

Mr and Mrs. J. C. Turple and two little sons spent the week end at Calgary

The Ladie's Aid met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Todd. It was decided to discontinue the meetings for the time being.

Mrs. Bayley is visiting this week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. C. Pfeiffer.

Miss Ruth Bowd spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Youell.

Leonard Youell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Youell, left Wednesday night for Saskatoon, where he will attend the University of Saskatchewan.

Threshing operations will be held up for about a week because of the rains first of the week. Mercury drops to 6 degrees below freezing.

Mr and Mrs. W. S. Lee and Mr. A. V. Youell were Calgary visitors over the week end.

Miss Mae Todd, Oyen, spent the week end at the home of parents, returning to Oyen Sunday.

Mrs Scott and little daughter Jean and Mrs. Atchison and daughter Shirley, of Oyen, were visitors Saturday at the home of Mrs. Todd.

ALBERTA NOT IN FAVOR OF STOCK SCHEME

Proposal of Hon. Robert Weir Not Accepted Here Says Minister

Proposals by Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion minister of agriculture, for the disposal of livestock of this province, by forwarding them to processing plants for preparation, have not met with the complete approval of the Alberta government, and the scheme as proposed by Hon. Mr. Weir, is not being accepted here, according to Hon. F. S. Grisdale, minister of agriculture.

The scheme was announced from Regina last week and Hon. Mr. Grisdale at the time indicated that the proposals were mainly directed to the situation in Saskatchewan and Manitoba and that the situation in Alberta was different in that many farmers were selling livestock at imported prices and were making a profit, thus not being interested in the proposals of the Weir scheme, which was palliative.

The provincial government, in order to meet the situation within its own jurisdiction, will buy between 7,000 and 8,000 cattle in the dry areas, at one cent a pound.

The cattle will be herded a central point and disposed of under a scheme the details of which are being worked out.

The Dominion government will co-operate in this scheme to the extent that it will pay its share of the transportation of the cattle on the basis of the agreement negotiated recently at Ottawa recently for the shipment of cattle under the free movement of settlers policy.

Will Build Dams in Chinook District

Complying with a request of Coltholme M. D., for an engineer to locate suitable sites for dams in the municipality for the creation of artificial water reservoirs, the government sent Mr. Burfield, who spent a few days surveying in the district recently. Mr. Lorne Proudfoot M. L. A., is hoping that a good deal of the relief work money allocated to the district will be spent in the construction of dams throughout the country as that is a more pressing need than roads.

School Fair

Continued from last week

GARDEN PRODUCTS

Class 9—Potatoes Red

Donald Roy, Ruth Harrington Robert Harrington, Elaine Roy, Hazel Harrington, Alymer Thompson, Gen. Roseau, Jacob Weins, Bruce Hutchison,

Class 10 Any Color Potatoes Gordon Smith, Alice Petersen, Elaine Roy, Donald Roy, Helen Thompson, Geo. Marcy, Bob Marcy.

FLOWERS

Class 12—Vase of Sweet Peas Norma Hobson, James Marcy,

GRINS

Vinnifred Marr, Phyllis Marr, Mervin Laughlin, Calvin Laughlin, Russel Laughlin, Lewis Little, Norman Jackson, Bob Marcy, Alice Petersen.

Class 15—Sheaf of Oats

Bruce Hutchison, Calvin Laughlin, Mervin Laughlin, Louis Little, Tessa Jackson

Class 17—Sheaf of Rye

Ralph Allen Class 25—6 Cobs of Corn

Walter Lougheed, Gabrielle Massey, Marcel Massey, Calvin Lougheed

Class 27—Noxious Weeds

Frank Marcy, George Marcy, James Marcy, Bob Marcy, Louis Pouliot (American or English breed)

Class 35—Pen of Chickens

Walter Lougheed, Jack Shier, Ted Milligan, George Marcy, James Marcy, Bob Marcy, Louis Robinson, David Schmidt

Class 36—Pen of Chickens (Mediterranean Breed)

Myrtle O'Malley

Class 37—Cuckoo

(American or English Breeds) John Bergen, Jack Shier, Jacob Wiens, Henry Schmidt, Charles Contts

Continued on Page 4

Save When You Buy

White Naphtha Laundry Soap 10 bars .32c

Sardines, Brunswick .5c each 21 for $1.00

Pure Spices 1-2 lb. cans each .25c

Red Rose "Rodeo" Coffee 3 lb. ctn .92c

Buffalo Brand Alberta grown and packed

Golden Bantam Corn 2 tins .27c

APPLES $1.40 per standard box

Chinook Trading Company

COAL & WOOD

Arriving this week.

Jim Aitken

Prompt delivery. Right prices.

LONDON - - PARIS

You can get them all. Standard Wave Band. Police calls and the Old Country short wave stations with the NEW PHILCO all-wave sets.

Come in and see and hear them. You will be amazed.

We have a fresh stock of B. Batteries priced from $2.85.

COOLEY BROS.

Implement Headquarters
Phone 10 Chinook, Alberta

SOCIAL CREDIT SUPPORTERS

TO MEET IN HANNA SEPT. 25

A meeting of supporters of Social Credit in Hand Hills Provincial Constituency will be held in Hanna on September 25 for the purpose of organizing a committee intended to supervise organization work throughout that riding.

Chinook Beauty Parlor

Miss Mae Petersen, Prop.
Phone 5, CHINOOK

Are
The Goods
That You Buy
ADVERTISED?

Merchandise must be good or it could not be Advertised.

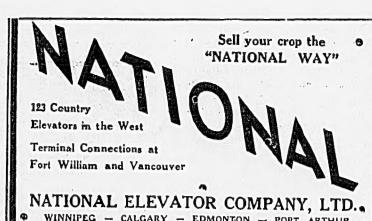

BUY Advertised GOODS

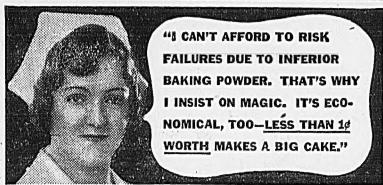

Printing

LETTERHEADS
ENVELOPES
STATEMENTS
TICKETS
POSTERS
HAND BILLS

Remember, we can fill all your requirements in the line of printing.

The Advance

says MISS M. McFARLANE, Dietitian of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto

MAGIC Baking Powder costs so little—and can always be depended on to give you uniformly good results. It actually takes less than 1¢ worth of Magic to make a big three-layer cake. So why take chances with inferior brands? Always bake with Magic and be sure!

"CONTAINS NO ALUM." This statement on every tin is your guarantee of quality. Magic Powder is free from alum or any harmful ingredient.

MAGIC

MADE IN CANADA

THE TENDERFOOT

By
GEORGE B. RODNEYAuthor of "The Coronado Trail,"
"The Canyon Trail," Etc.

CHAPTER I.

"When you tell me that you're going out to Crevasses County to claim your half of the old Hour-glass ranch, I tell you, Mr. Keene, that you're just asking for trouble!"

Simon Burwell, first vice-president of the Drovers Bank in Cato, leaned back in his chair, spread his hands tip-toe and stared at his visitor. He took him in from head to foot and frankly liked what he saw. Then he studied an open letter on his desk.

"Your uncle was a good friend of mine," he said. "But he was very careless or unwise to make the will he did. . . ."

"What do you mean?" Gerald Keene straightened up in his chair and Simon Burwell grinned at him.

"Don't carry a chip on your shoulder, my boy. I'm not criticizing old Peter. Why, boy, I loved him. Your uncle lived many years in the West. He and old Joe Carr were partners for years. It was quite natural that, when Peter died he should leave the Hour-glass ranch to his partner, Joe Carr. But when he dragged you into the matter he only complicated matters. How long since you saw your uncle?"

"I never laid eyes on him in my life," said Keene. "He was my mother's brother and the family was widely separated. I happened to learn of the bequest quite accidentally. I, good stock with old Joe Carr's blood red Hereford bulls on the open range. All I really know is that bad spirit developed between the two spreads. I don't know what started, but I do know that over a year ago Jim Girtin, sheriff of Crevasses County, notified both ranches to pay off their men on different days. That was because every pay day in Seeo was a regular Civil War. Anyhow . . . old Carr claims, somewhat loudly, that Dustin and Goddard have been looting the Hour-glass, but he's never been able to prove it. All I really know is that, with cattle and water and land and grass, old Joe is gettin' deeper and deeper in bad water. That's all I can tell you; that you're half-owner in a big ranch and that's all there is to it, sir!"

"It has never kept me busy, I'm sorry to say," said Burwell. "There is no business worthy speaking of. You're the half owner of a big ranch that doesn't pay a dollar of dividends . . . and won't. Have you seen your uncle's will?"

Burwell did not wait a reply. He went to a wall safe and came back with a slim document that he read meticulously, accenting every word,

If you're not mighty careful, you'll have your head pulled under!"

"Huh. Still I don't quite see. If old man Carr is losin' money, who pays it out? Where's it comin' from?"

"I've tried to tell you. God help you if you try to keep old Joe Carr's head above water. He'll only drown you both. But you'd better run out there yourself, Mr. Keene, and take a look at things."

"Thanks. I'm going to do exactly that."

As Gerald Keene rose and took his hat, Simon Burwell got a glimpse of gray eyes that narrowed as the glass and a mouth that was almost straight above a full lower lip. The knowing vice-president grinned a little.

"I think my visitor will go far," he muttered. "I never even asked him what his occupation is. . . . Huh. A man used to sell bonds! Not learn much about a ranch. However . . . Old Judge Frame evidently takes an interest in him . . . And I'm well quit of the business!" But he rose and walked to the long window and watched his late caller as he left.

A half-hour later Gerald Keene plunged through the door of a hotel room, slammed the door and gripped the shoulder of a man who was sitting in a chair by the window watching the world spin past between the toes of his boots on the sill.

"Duro," he said, "we're in a mess right up to our hocks. I swear I don't see any answer to it. . . . His lean face lit and his eyes twinkled. There are eyes that gleam and eyes that twinkle. Those twinkled. There is a difference. One has humor; the other has none. Stone studied his friend for a brief moment.

"Shoot," he said.

"Well, I gave old man Burwell my letter of introduction and he told me all he knew about the Hour-glass ranch. It seems that by my uncle's will half the ranch is mine; the other half belongs to his old partner, Joe Carr. He lives on the Hour-glass with his daughter and has made a fat hen right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What sells him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades."

You may as well know the worst as once, Mr. Keene. Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager, Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under wraps here! I believe, though, to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is being right now, very thoroughly and consistently hooted!"

"Huh. . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with ohion hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on please . . . And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well. . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and

equ

THE CHINOOK ADVANCE

Published by Mrs. M. C. Nicholson every Thursday afternoon from The Advance Building, Main Street, Chinook, Alberta, and entered in the postoffice as second class mail matter.

All letters addressed to the editor for insertion in The Advance, must be signed to show bona fides of the writer. Publication in all cases is subject to the judgment of the Publisher. We do not necessarily coincide with views expressed.

The subscription rates to The Advance are $1.50 per annum in Canada and $2.00 outside of Canada.

The transient advertising rates in The advance are—display, 40¢ per inch for first week and 30¢ for each succeeding week, providing no change is made. For heavy copy, there is an extra charge made for first week. Reading notices, 10¢ per count line. Legal advertising, 15¢ per count line for first week and 10¢ for each succeeding week. Cards of thanks, $1.00.

SMALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisements under this heading are charged at the rate of 50¢ for 25 words or less per week, with 10¢ for each additional 5 words. Three weeks' for the price of two.

CHINOOK UNITED CHURCH

Strangers Cordially Welcome

Rev. Donald McGregor

CHINOOK CATHOLIC CHURCH

Service Second Sunday Every Month,

Mass at 9 a.m.

CHINOOK MARKET PRICES

WHEAT

1 Northern.....	$ 64	I-2
2 Northern.....	60	I-2
3 Northern.....	59
No. 4.....	55
No. 5.....	50	I-2
No. 6.....	45
Feed.....	38

OATS

2 C. W.....	33	I-2
3 C. W.....	30
Feed.....	30

Anything to buy or sell? Try a Want Ad. "Advance" ads get results.

WANTED—The news from every part of the Chinook district. Send it in.

Motor Truck Delivery
Prompt Service, Prices Reasonable
M. L. CHAPMAN . . . Chinook

STRIP FARMING

Additional evidence comes to light on the value of strip farming for the dry districts of the west.

It has been practiced in Alberta for some years and the idea is taking hold in Saskatchewan. A party of farmers from Shaunavon visited Mana recently and were convinced that better crops will be secured in this way. The municipality of Bushville in Saskatchewan has about 4000 acres of land farmed in strips following in-traction from the extension department of the University. It is not a method that becomes immediately popular as it means a change in the layout of the farm. However, farmers are gradually realizing that something has to be done, especially on the light lands. Some are trying the cover crop system of seeding a light crop of oats in the fall. The strip farming will clean the lands of weeds, and conserve moisture. With this system farmers can work their lands as they should and without fear of drifting, providing the strips are north and south and not too wide.

In one case in Bushville district a man found that he had his strips too wide, 16 rods on light land. He learned that the strips would hold the land if they were limited to eight or ten rods. In the year 1933 the entire half section was summer fallowed and seeded to wheat last Spring. The soil started drying early in the Spring and continued throughout the Summer. The result is not a bushy will be harvested on that half section.

JIMMIE McLARNIN REGAINS

TITLE FROM BARNEY ROSS

Jimmie McLarnin, the Vancouver idol, regained his title on Monday night when he defeated Barney Ross in the world's championship welter-weight bout at Madison Square Gardens, New York.

DOUGLAS PARTY CONTINUES AUSTRALIAN CAMPAIGN

Despite the fact that they failed to elect a single candidate in Saturday's Australian elections, the Douglas Credit Party will continue its battle for the Social Credit scheme sponsored by Major Douglas. The leader of the party said, "The fact that we registered a good poll is encouraging. I feel certain that within the next few years we will succeed in convincing a majority that our cause is right."

FOOD IDEAS

LIVER

Liver, on account of its wealth of vitamins, should be served in every household twice a week. Calf liver is the most delicate and expensive; but lamb, pig and beef liver may be used. Have it sliced about a half inch thick and remove the skin and veins. Roll in flour to which you have added salt and pepper, and fry in hot fat about five minutes, turning so that it will be brown on both sides. Bacon fat is usually used for frying liver, but butter or any meat fryings will do. A little mustard may be added to the flour mixture for variety. Do not fry the liver hard and dry. The cover, to keep the steam in, and a low fire will prevent this.

Cocoa, chocolate, shredded coconut, or sliced dates may be cooked with blanc mange or boiled custard, or these may be served with almost any raw or cooked fruits.

Other milk desserts are made with junket tablets, tapioca, rice, or stale bread or cake. Grated orange peel, and brown sugar may be used for variation.

Whipped cream is the base of many desserts. These are made by adding chopped nuts, crushed peanut brittle, fruit pulp or pieces cut marshmallows or cut macaroons to whipped cream; dishing in sherbet glasses and setting in the refrigerator for several hours to ripen and chill.

Classified Ads

FOR RENT—5 roomed house for particulars apply at the Advance office.

BANK OF CANADA
CAPITAL, $5,000,000
Divided into 100,000 Shares of $50.00 Each

The Minister of Finance, pursuant to the provisions of the Bank of Canada Act, offers for public subscription:

100,000 Shares of the Capital Stock of the

BANK OF CANADA

Issue Price: $50.00 a Share

PAYABLE AS FOLLOWS:

On Application $12.50 a Share

On Jan. 2, 1935 $37.50 a Share

The Bank of Canada has been incorporated by the Parliament of Canada and given wide powers to operate as a central bank of issue and rediscount for Canada.

The Bank is authorized to pay cumulative dividends from its profits, after provision for expenses, depreciation, etc., at the rate of 4.4% per annum, payable half-yearly. Surplus profits are to be applied to the rest fund of the Bank or paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund as provided by the Bank of Canada Act.

Not more than 50 shares may be held by for the benefit of any one person. Shareholders must be British subjects ordinarily resident in Canada or corporations organized under Dominion or provincial laws and controlled by British subjects ordinarily resident in Canada.

Subscriptions should be mailed to the Minister of Finance, Ottawa, in envelopes marked "Bank of Canada Shares."

Payment must be made by a certified cheque on a chartered bank or by a bank draft or post office or express company money order, payable to the Receiver General of Canada.

As soon as possible after subscriptions have been received, allotments will be made and notice of the allotment will be mailed to the post office address furnished by the subscriber.

Further particulars will be found in the official prospectus and application form which may be obtained at the Department of Finance, the offices of the Assistant Receivers General, post offices, any branch of any chartered bank, and other financial institutions.

The Subscription List will open on September 17, 1934, and close on or before September 21, 1934, with or without notice, at the discretion of the Minister of Finance.

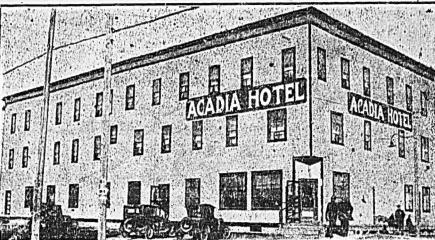

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, OTTAWA,
SEPTEMBER 17, 1934.

CHINOOK

HOTEL

A Home away from Home

Fully Licensed
Dining Room In Connection

Gus Cook, Prop.

Rates Reasonable

ALBERTA ASKS BETTER RATES

Better railway freight rates on grain and grain by-products will be asked for in behalf of Alberta at a hearing before the railway commission in Ottawa September 26, to which A. Chard, provincial supervisor of freight rates will go as a representative of the government.

Specifically, Mr. Chard will submit a case for the immediate adjustment of domestic rates on all grades on grain, flour, and mill-feed to British Columbia, such rates to now be in effect from Fort William eastward, and for a special rate on coarse grains to points in Eastern Canada for at least one year. A request will also be submitted to the Dominion government for a bonus, at a reasonable rate, on all summerfallow land in 1934 cropped to coarse grains.

ALBERTA GOVERNMENT

TO BUY CATTLE

Between 7,000 and 8,000 head of surplus cattle will be bought by the provincial government from farmers in the drought area, taken to central points, and there distributed among ranchers of the area. Payment will be paid, and the business will be handled through the Department of Agriculture.

This decision of policy, announced by Hon. P. S. Gridale, means that Alberta will not be coming under the scheme recently arranged and announced by Hon. Robt. Weir, federal minister of agriculture, which contemplated the processing of the cattle to export beef and hide.

Mr. Gridale said that the details of the new provincial plan are not yet complete but are now being worked out and will be made public shortly.

The buying and selling will be done with the co-operation of the Dominion government and the railways in respect to freight rates on the cattle.

INCREASE IN CREAM DELIVERIES

OCTOGENARIAN DIES IN HANNA HOSPITAL

Creameries of Alberta continue to report an increase in amount of cream delivered for this season over 1933. During the five weeks ending September 1, a total of 2,537,009 lbs. of butter fat was received, an increase of 5.3% over the same period of 1933. For the period from January to August inclusive, a total of 16,913,142 lbs. have been received, an increase of 10.4% over 1933.

Charles Stewart, aged 89 years, and pioneer of the Richdale district, passed away in the Hanna hospital on Friday morning. The late Chas. Stewart had been a patient in that institution for the past seven years, having suffered the amputation of both legs. During his long confinement in the hospital deceased bore up bravely under his affliction and earned the profound respect of the entire staff and of scores of friends who visited him regularly. Interment took place on Monday morning with mass in St. George's Catholic church.

Try a

Want Ad

Want Ads Get Results

Why Not

TRY

Advertising

Continued from Front Page

Class 38—Pullet

(American or English)

Henry Schmidt, Jack Wiens, John Bargen, Cob Wiens

Class 19—Cockrel

(Mediterranean Breed)

Myrtle O'Malley

Class 40—Pullet

(Mediterranean Breed)

Myrtle O'Malley

Class 41—Gobbler or hen

Myrtle O'Malley, George Marcy, Edward Davis, Jacob Wiens, Jim Marcy, Bob Marcy

Class 42—Grouse or Goose

Theo Rosenau, August Rosenau, George Rosenau, Harold Rosenau, Jacob Wiens, Mary Wiens, Myrtle O'Malley, John Bargen, Irvin Squire

Class 43—Pair of Ducks

John Schmidt, George Schmidt

Manual Training

Class 44—Bird House

Milton Dressel, Bob Marcy, Jack Shier

Class 45—Small Piece of Furniture

Chester Rideout, Milton Dressel, Jack Lee

Class 46—Handy device

made of wood

James Proudfont, James Marcy, Alymer Thompson, Jack Shier, Bob Marcy, Chester Rideout

Class 47—Collection Knots

Bob Marcy, Robert Harrington, Donald Roy, George Marcy, Frank Marcy, Dean Tomkins, Russel Laughlin, Jack Shier

Class 48—Collection of Splices

Frank Marcy, B. H. Marcy, Jack Shier, Robert Harrington

Class 49—Kope Halter

Frank Marcy, Bob Marcy, Robt. Harrington, Jack Shier, Dean Tomkins, Russel Laughlin, Calvin Laughlin, Mervin Laughlin

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS

Cooking under 11 years of age

Class 50—Raisin Cake

Ruth Harrington, Elaine Roy, Freda Milligan, Lois Robinson, Amabel Mayers, Grace Stewart